

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION:

The present invention provides a method for the rapid isolation and recovery of a desired target DNA or RNA molecules from a mixture or library containing such molecules. The method involves the use of biotinylated probes and enzymatic repair-cleavage to eliminate undesired library members from a sample.